AMERICAN BOMBERS, FIGHTER PLANES GO INTO ACTION ON TUNISIAN FRONT IN CONTINUING ASSAULTS ON ENEMY FORCES

U. S. and French Troops Dig In on Hill Positions Behind Lines Established by Germans in Their 60-Mile Advance —Prepare To Hold Until the British 8th
Army Crashes Through Mareth Line in South

By International News Service

American bombers and fighter planes swept into action on the central Tunisian front today in continuing assaults on enemy forces as United States and French troops dug in on hill positions behind the lines established by the Germans in their 60-mile advance.

Our aircraft were pounding the enemy advance units while American and French ground troops consolidated positions on the more easily defended heights and prepared to hold until the British Eighth Army crashes through the Mareth line in south Tunisia or outflanks the fortifications to threaten the rear of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces.

Berlin reported that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery already had launched a flanking attack on the German Army holding the "little Maginot line."

The Allied command was reported bringing up reinforcements of troops, and guns and tanks to replace those destroyed or abandoned in the forced withdrawal.

There was no disposition to minimize the seriousness of the defeat, or the casualties and loss of sorely needed equipment, but Allied sources regarded the action as a mere local engagement which may delay but cannot prevent the final defeat of the enemy.

Gen. Alphonse Juin, French commander, said that Rommel's attack had worn itself down, and another encouraging report was contained in a French communiqué which said a German tank assault had been repulsed 20 miles south of Pichon.

American and French forces were entrenched on a 90-mile line extending from Tebessa, 12 miles inside Algeria and extending northeast to Pichon, which is 80 miles from Tunis.

As they strengthened their positions the 12th Air Force pounded enemy vanguards in continued assaults on troop concentrations, transport columns and airfields.

Elsewhere on the world battlefields the Axis found no comfort whatever. The German rout in Russia continued unabated as the Reds pushed to within 20 miles of Orel and closed in on Axis forces trapped in the Caucasus and in the Donets Basin northeast of Rostov.

The RAF again smashed military targets in Germany, and Allied bombers in the southwest Pacific smashed at eight Japanese bases in the New Guinea area.

TRANSITION FROM MILITARY TO CIVILIAN LIFE CARRIES SEVERE IMPACT FOR MANY; RED CROSS LOOKS AHEAD TO AID IN THE DEMOBILIZATION

By Mrs. E. Paul Patton

The radical transition from military life back to civilian carries an impact understandably severe for many service men, even under the best circumstances. The American Red Cross, with its usual foresight is looking ahead to demobilization for the post-war period. Hundreds of thousands of our armed forces will need assistance in readjustment to civilian life of the able-bodied as well as the disabled. At the present time however Red Cross is helping those men who need immediate and in many cases prolonged assistance in their personal and social readjustments. They are the disabled.

American hospital ships bearing wounded troops have already returned to this country. To give them maximum assistance Red Cross, with the co-operation of Federal, State, and private agencies, has mapped a comprehensive and long-range program. It is initiated in military and naval welfare service. It is carried out by home service of the disabled man's local Red Cross chapter. It begins when the service man is discharged because of disability; it ends when he no longer needs help and can face his future with confidence. By the time the disabled veteran has returned to his home his local chapter has received recommendations from the army doctors sent forward by the Red Cross medical social worker and the chapter is ready to plan long term treatment.

Home service gives him information concerning government insurance, assists him with his government disability pension claim, and if medical council advises it Red Cross refers the veteran to his state vocational rehabilitation bureau for training in a trade suitable to his physical limitations, and within a few months he will be contributing to the war effort by employment in a defense industry.

The War Department, in sending notifications of death, advises the next of kin to seek the assistance of their local Red Cross in presenting their claims. As the war goes on and casualties increase this work will develop into one of the most active phases of Red Cross service to the armed forces. To advise on individual claims Red Cross maintains a staff of claim experts in national headquarters and in each of the four area offices. Red Cross procedures in claim work are as follows: The Red Cross field director helps the disabled service man file his claim before he leaves his station. In addition the field director refers the service man to his Red Cross home chapter for further help. At the same time the field director apprises the chapter of the man's application upon his arrival home. Red Cross is then prepared to expedite the claim by working directly with the Red Cross field director in the regional office of the veterans' administration. Pending settlement which frequently requires from two to three months, home service provides the disabled veteran and his family with such aid as they may require.

The War Department also refers to Red Cross those families who wish to apply for pay allowances when the man is missing, interned, captured or besieged. Red Cross does not like to publicize this phase of its service although it is one in which its expenditures are most heavy. Each case is performed in confidence and the magnitude of service rendered carries on unaltered except for appreciation of those benefited.

As the army, navy and marine service expand, so must the service of Red Cross expand proportionately. To do this takes money and more money. The American Red Cross with its manifold services is dependent on public contributions and membership dues. Each individual contributing an amount equal or exceeding the minimum membership fee of $1 is accorded full membership privileges. Millions have a part in the operation of the American Red Cross. They participate in the work of the organization through membership. The President of the United States, upon acceptance, Continued On Page Four

A question and answer period followed.

A general discussion relative to playground equipment occurred, and members plan to have swings repaired, provided necessary equipment can be secured.

Attendance award of $1 was received by Mrs. Bock's fourth and fifth grades. Due to the gasoline shortage the P. T. A. meetings will be discontinued for the present. Residents of Certain Areas
Also Informed Where To Register

FEBRUARY 23RD TO 26TH

A request is made by those in charge of registration for Ration Book No. 2, which will take place next week, for registration in Bristol in an alphabetical order, insofar as possible.

It is asked that families whose last names start with letters A to E register on Tuesday; F to K on Wednesday; L to R on Thursday; and S to Z on Friday.

The residents of various wards have assignments also made to definite school buildings for registration, it being the belief that matters will be greatly facilitated if this plan is followed.

Residents of the first ward are asked to register at Wood street school building; residents of the second ward, below Washington street, to Wood street school; second ward residents above Washington street to Jefferson avenue school; third ward residents to Bath street school; fourth ward residents, below Beaver street, to Bath street school; fourth ward residents above Beaver street, to Jefferson avenue school; fifth ward residents to Jefferson avenue school; and sixth ward residents to the high school building.

ROTARY WILL BE FACTOR AT PEACE TABLE, SAYSSPEAKER

E. Stanley Bowers Addresses
Group Here Which He Organized 19 Years Ago

SOME GUESTS PRESENT

Attainments of Rotary Have Already Proven To Be Worthwhile

E. Stanley Bowers, past-president of the Philadelphia Rotary Club, and organizer and founder of the Bristol Rotary Club 19 years ago, was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the local Rotary Club at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon. His subject was "Rotary In A Global War."

"Rotary will be an active factor at the peace table," Bowers declared. "And in the post-war period it will render many worthwhile services. The quality of friendship in this Bristol club is indicative of this expression. Rotary tells us we must live together in peace and harmony."

The speaker related experiences in his own manufacturing concern in which the social uplift factor with his employees is the key to the way the business is conducted.

"The attainments already achieved have proved this plan worthwhile," Bowers stated. "Right now we are giving 80% of our production to the Government and we are making production records which were never dreamed possible."

"Rotary's job is to get into the mind and the heart in a spiritual way, both in business and on the job, with the objects for which Rotary stands."

"There is right now a lot of thinking about the post-war period that is extremely loose thinking. We must bear in mind that the only changes that are worthwhile are those that are evolutionary and not revolutionary."

"A testimonial to Rotary soundness is the way it stays put, both nationally and internationally. It will continue to stand up and grow and this is the real tribute to its existence."

A very large attendance of Rotarians, guests and visitors was on hand to hear Bowers talk. Among the guests present were three members of the U. S. Coast Guard: Richard Lever, Joseph V. McCann, and Frederick D. Saunders.

The workers, last night, were addressed by H. S. Plummer, War Fund Branch Staff.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

British Batter Axis-Held Mareth Line

Cairo.—British artillery today battered the forward defenses of the Axis held Mareth Line in the Medenine area of Tunisia in what appeared to be the opening of an assault to smash the fortifications held by forces of Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Batteries of the defending Afrika Korps returned the fire.

At the southern end of the "little Maginot" fortifications other units of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army occupied the town of Fount Tathouine.

Unfavorable weather hindered operations of Allied air forces over the fighting area as the Eighth Army ground forces closed in to give battle.

The Middle East High Command communique reporting the action revealed that Allied torpedo planes Wednesday night sank a medium-sized Axis merchant ship northwest of Sicily.

R. A. F. Bombs Wilhelmshaven

London.—RAF bombers carried out a heavy attack on the north German port of Wilhelmshaven during the night, the Air Ministry announced today. British bombers were over the Nazi submarine base and construction center in good weather.

It was admitted that four of the RAF planes failed to return to their bases. The Berlin radio admitted that British bombers were over the Helgoland Bight but declared that the raiders dropped their bombs "at random."

Axis E-Boat Destroyed

London.—The Admiralty today announced that one Axis E-boat had been destroyed and a second damaged in an unsuccessful attack yesterday against a British convoy in the North Sea.

Neither the Allied convoy nor the British destroyers Garth and Montrose which engaged the enemy at close range suffered any casualties.

BUYING BY "POINTS"

Point rationing of food—which is based on the system of rationing in effect in England—will be a new experience for Americans. There never has been anything like it in the United States.

Under point rationing the housewife will find it necessary to keep informed of latest OPA regulations and day-to-day orders as to point values. Point values, it has been announced, will fluctuate according to the degree of scarcity of different items of canned foods.

All this, it is reasoned, will be conducive to more simple gustatory habits. Obviously few housewives who have been wont to buy pate de foie gras will continue to indulge the habit if a week's supply of points is required for one can. Consolation can be gleaned from the statements of connoisseurs that pate de foie gras now on the market is inferior to the imports that formerly came from France.

Good, old-fashioned American canned beans, tomatoes and soups will, it is predicted, have the lowest point values, and who wants pate de foie gras when pork and beans are to be had? Interesting comment on food rationing in general is offered by Raymond Clapper, New Deal newspaper columnist. Raymond holds that under sugar rationing most consumers are permitted to buy more sugar than they used before it was rationed, and thinks this speaks well for rationing. To most people this, if true, is an argument against the rationing.

Grocers, already operating with reduced personnel, shake their heads when point rationing is mentioned, or become vocal. They have a vision of housewives comparing point values endlessly before deciding on the purchase of one can of this or that. But those who wonder how this new rationing set-up will function will not have long to wait for the answer. Point rationing is here and plans are under way to expand it to additional food staples.

FLOUR CONSUMPTION GAINS

One of the factors working to eliminate the wheat surplus is the growing use of flour for bread and pastries. People are eating more bread, and more flour is being used to make bread and pastries.

One of the reasons for this is that bakers are rationed on certain scarce materials. Normally bakers use a minimum of 6 per cent milk solids in bread. Now that is cut down to 3 per cent to conserve dairy products. That puts flour consumption by bakers at a higher rate than would be accounted for by gains in the demand for bread.

Then, too, pastries are in increasing demand as other commercial sweets fade off the market. When the availability of candy diminishes, consumers turn more to pies, cookies and cakes. These can be baked satisfactorily with sugar substitutes.

Already bakers are using 12 per cent more flour than they normally do and additional increases are indicated. It is but another drain upon the wheat hoard which, in the end, will permit the wheat producing states to grow their principal crop free of the embarrassment of a price-cramping surplus.

Italian casualties of 50,000 in January are admitted by Rome. Things really are becoming lively when Mussolini's soldiers are unable to keep out of range of the guns.

There's a grand "Incubator" for $3.95 and a heavy cardboard one for even less. Each measures 24 x 12 1/2 ins. and has a large plastic glass window for letting in the needed ultra-violet rays. Seeds—and you can buy the best here—are exciting when planted like this. $3.95 is a small investment for big and early returns!

BEACON HILL means to me the practically perfect reproductions of old 18th Century mahogany pieces. Have you seen the "Beacon Hill" Galleries at the end of the 5th fl. Furniture Dept. in the Snellenburg Store? No? You've a first treat in store. Yes? You've another treat in store. It's like going to a museum, only that the pieces you fall in love with you can order sent home. All pieces are sold separately, so that you can harmonize them as you like. They're lovely, lovely, hand made, hand finished and rubbed, woods chosen for a heavenly grain. Spend a beautiful half hour just seeing them. Say I said so.

GRAND RUGS. While February Furniture Sales are going on, the rug department keeps the rug and the Snellenburg Rug Dept. is especially on its velvet toes! Nowhere have I found such all wool Wiltons and Axminsters as those now selling at Snellenburgs for $49.95. Tone on tone in graceful leaf designs, and in 18th Century florals, they measure 8 x 12 ft. and are lovely, and so reasonable. Hurry to see them. 4th fl.

IT'S PATRIOTIC to sew your own these days, and Notion Depts. are having a tough time supplying all the necessary dressmaking supplies. However, the stock of these in the Snellenburg Notion Dept. is extraordinarily complete. During the coming nation "Sew & Save Week" (it begins the 29th) the Department is going all out for the accommodation of women of Philadelphia and vicinity. Many things will be reduced or sold at special prices. I've had inside information for you Budgeteers. Flock in now—don't let me down! Main Floor.

KITCHEN OPPORTUNITY! Don't neglect outfitting the kitchen during the February Furniture Sales. We can't begin now to furnish yours with coordinated kitchen equipment! You can, my dear Budgeteer, at a saving of $20 on one single cabinet. Think of being able to buy a splendid Kitchen Craft utility cabinet—as spacious as grandmother's old "kitchen dresser" for $69 instead of $89! Hard wood, cream-colored doors, Dupont finish, chrome hardware, precision drawers and, for a tiny extra charge, sold on a deferred payment plan! Buy other associate pieces now or later Snellenburgs, 2nd fl. Housefurnishings Dept.

PORTABLE CLOSETS save many a family squabble and rob many a month of a good meal. Some women don't realize how cheaply good ones can be bought. The Snellenburg Housewares Dept. (3rd fl.) goes in for such closets in a big way. There are the "Odora Chests." They come in four highly convenient sizes, from 62 to 69 ins. high, and costing from $2.98 to $5.98. Finished in an attractive woodgrain finish upon sturdy fabricated material in lacquered wood frames. All are double doored and 21 ins. deep. Some even have a hat shelf. Order and remove more easily kept with enough closets. Every person rates his own.

magazine in a general way, it is interesting that Mr. Elmer Davis, titular head of the OWI, with whose approval it was issued, agrees that some parts of the questioned articles are "indefensible."

HIS EXCUSE that he had not read it as carefully as he should sustains the notion that Mr. Davis had little or nothing to do with the publication and is consulted only as a matter of routine about foreign propaganda. While he thus can be acquitted of any personal political purpose, he does not seem to have his own organization very well under control. If he had, certainly, before it went out he would have considered very carefully, indeed, the contents of so ambitious and costly a venture as Victory.

AT ANY rate, the inclusion of what to many will seem like campaign material is particularly unfortunate at this time because it appears to supplement the fourth-term activity of the Left Wing New Dealers in Washington, which is so hard to reconcile with single-hearted prosecution of the war and certainly conflicts with the Presidential pleas for national unity and the suspension of politics for the duration of the conflict.

THE POINT in the fourth-term movement has been reached where some of the White House intimates now go about asking, "Who do you think will run against the Chief next year?" In view of this sort of thing, together with certain recent Administration gestures toward labor, it is not surprising that Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats should resent use of public funds to disseminate fulsome eulogies of Mr. Roosevelt and references to those who opposed him as reactionaries. Even though these are circulated only in foreign lands, they are paid for by the taxes of everybody. The joint committee will perform a service if as a result of its investigation it purges our foreign propaganda of partisanship and induces a careful supervision of these articles by someone whose ardent New Dealism does not become his judgment.

HIGH SCHOOL FIVE MAY DEADLOCK SERIES TONIGHT

Morrisville Five Will Oppose
Local Team Here This Evening

JR. VARSITY GAME, TOO

Morrisville Team Is In The Midst of A Losing Streak

Bristol High School will have an opportunity of deadlocking the Lower Bucks County League tonight when it meets the Morrisville High School on the local floor. A junior varsity game is also scheduled between the teams of the two schools, this game getting under way at 7:30 o'clock.

Coach "Bill" Bartholomew has his fingers crossed for tonight's match. Bartholomew figures that good shooting from the foul mark will decide the game. In fact, it was poor shooting from the gift line which caused the Bunnies the first game with the Bulldogs. In this game, Bristol scored but five fouls in 21 tries.

In all Bristol-Morrisville games, plenty of fouls are prevalent. The boys are always under a strain and besides this "Jimmy" Doheny's style of ball playing calls for close guarding which sometimes leads to fouls.

Morrisville is in a midst of a losing streak. The team has lost to Trenton Catholic, Hamilton, and B. M. I. in succession. Bristol has fared little better in its last three games, losing to both Riverside and George School, but managing to beat N. J. S. D. this week.

Angelo Cordisco, Kenny Maag, Johnny Messanelli, Len Simons, and Paul Ruby will make up the Bristol starting five, while Morrisville's starting lineup will have Aiello, Querns, Young, Hoernle, and Stradling.

Coach Clarence Bartholomew's Bristol junior varsity swamped Morrisville, 34-21, in its last meeting. Against high school teams, Bristol's junior varsity has won ten games and lost one.

Chemurgy or chemistry in action was the subject upon which Lawrence J. Pearson, of Newtown, spoke at the meeting of the Newtown Parent-Teacher Association in Newtown high school, Monday evening. Introduced by Albert Mammel, the guest speaker pointed out that chemurgy provides for the industrial use of waste and surplus farm products. It also provides for the industrial use of raw materials.

Briefly Mr. Pearson explained how some farm products, including corn cobs and skimmed milk, can be used in the making of plastics for industrial use. He also spoke briefly of the value of soy beans to the industrial world.

Sixty persons attended the meeting, which was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Stanley Blinn. During the evening a group of George School students, under leadership of Julian McCreary, rendered a program of instrumental numbers. Young people taking part included: Sheldon Mitchell, Roy Welsh, Newton Graham, Charles Gilbert, William Gawthrop and Roger Minthorne.

The Rev. Chester J. Buzzard reported a paid up membership of 275.

alone, southwest of Novo-Shaktinsk, 60 localities were cleared of enemy troops. Probably the most important news of the day was announcement of the capture of Matveyev-Kurgan, 25 miles north of Tazanrog on the rail line to Stalino and the Donets. Occupation of this rail station virtually cuts off Tazanrog and threatens escape of Axis forces, believed to number many thousands, still fighting in the area between Stalino and Voroshilovgrad to the east.

Russian columns driving down the rail line from Krasnodar towards Novorossisk were within 50 miles of the Black Sea port where the remnants of Axis divisions in the West Caucasus were massing for an attempt to escape by sea to the Crimea.

The Air Ministry in London made no early announcement of targets attacked in Germany in the second night raid in succession but Berlin reported British bombers over Heligoland Bight. This suggested that the objective of the raid might be the great German naval base at Kiel.

The night attack followed daylight striding attacks on Axis communications in France and Belgium, and attacks by a strong force of speedy mosquito bombers on railway objectives in the Tours area.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's bombers blasted enemy airfields and shipping in the Solomons, New Britain Island, Dutch Timor and on New Guinea. Medium bombers caused heavy damage at the air and sea base at Buin, in the Northern Solomons, in a devastating two-hour attack which started fires visible 50 miles away.

Two cargo ships were damaged off New Britain, and an enemy destroyer was believed to have been disabled near Dili, on Dutch Timor.

In the day's widespread operations, only two Allied bombers were reported lost.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

By JOE ELBERSON

Perhaps, since today marks the initial appearance of this column, we should attempt to tell you something about it.

Briefly, we want to use it as a clearing house of information for the highlights of "what's news" amongst the hunting and fishing fraternity in our own local section.

We want to conduct it for the enjoyment of local sportsmen . . . for those who hunt, fish, trap, shoot, and for those who generally spend their leisure hours in the fields and woods and on our lakes and streams.

Occasionally we're going to ask local sportsmen who are well versed in their particular pastimes to conduct this column as our guests.

Contributions from local sportsmen will be gladly accepted. Club news of the organizations in this area will also be welcomed. All items, however, will have to be authenticated before they are used.

As far as policy goes . . . there is just one thing that the writer will keep in mind. And that is the promotion of those interests that will benefit the sportsman, and the promotion of which will work no hardship on any other group.

The slogan which appears on the stationery of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association sums up completely the views of the writer: "For the Better Protection of our Forests, Streams, Fish, Game and Insectivorous Birds and the Promotion of a Healthful Outdoor Recreation."

The stocking program of the Pennsylvania Game Commission in this area was completed on Wednesday with the distribution of 42 ringneck pheasants. The birds, all coveys, were in good condition and this strong, healthy stock should aid the propagation of pheasants in this section.

Three dozen cottontail rabbits were received from the Game Commission last week and planted in open hunting territory around Bristol. Members of the game committee of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association were on hand for the release of both the pheasants and the rabbits.

Meet your new Game Protector for lower Bucks County. . . He's Mr. George Freas, Horsham, Pa. Mr. Freas was appointed by the game Commission to fill in for Edwin J. Stucke, Philadelphia, who recently resigned from the Commission payroll. Stucke, who was a Game Protector for Philadelphia County since April 16, 1929, was also Game Protector for lower Bucks County for the last few years. This happened when the Commission redistricted the County and threw the lower end of Bucks in with Phila. County. Local sportsmen were far from satisfied with the plan and as equally unsatisfied with Mr. Stucke's work in this section.

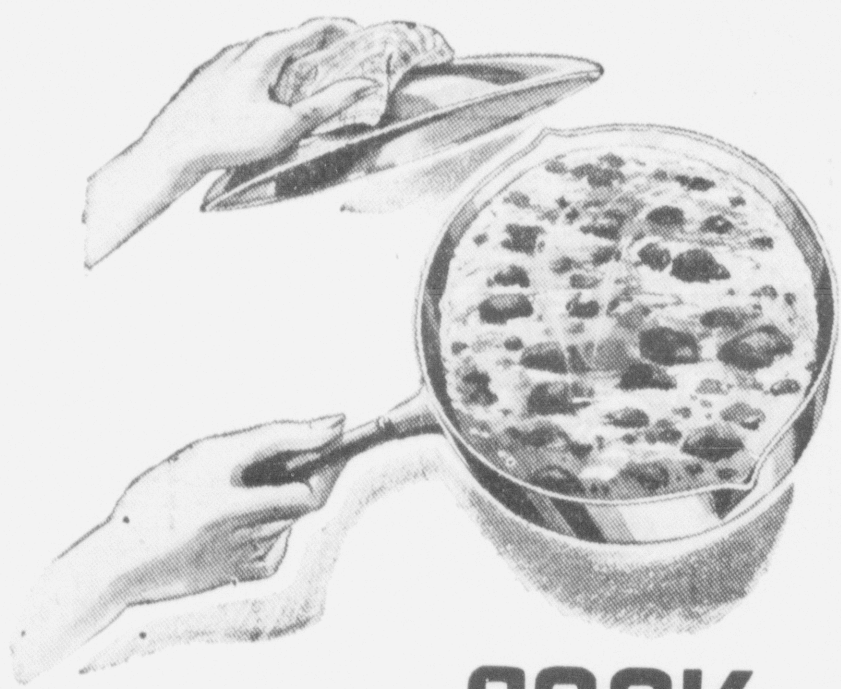

Mr. Freas made this promise in a recent interview: "Your problems will be my problems; don't hesitate to call on me whenever necessary; I want to co-operate with every club and every sportsman in my district." Personally, we are convinced that Freas will do an outstanding job.

It won't be long now until we begin to clean up the old fishing tackle kit. Some of the fellows are already counting the days before suckers start to run. Suckers should be running before another month has gone by. The Neshaunim Creek at Hulmeville, below the dam, is one of the most popular spots for sucker fishermen. It's easily accessible without a car. The local bus line runs through Hulmeville.

We have been hearing a lot of wild rumors about the drastic curtailment of the stocking program of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission for 1943. Well, it's not nearly as bad as was idly rumored. In fact, Charles A. French, Commissioner of Fisheries, told me in a recent letter that there will not be much curtailment of the State stocking program this year. He promises to do the best very possible with the facilities of the Commission.

Last year the Commission planted a total of 6,900 fish right in our own back yard—the Canal and at Maple Beach. Included were bass, yellow perch, sunfish, catfish, and suckers. Another 11,300 fish were stocked in the Neshaunim Creek.

Silver Lake wasn't stocked last year because there was a possibility that the lower end of the lake (the deep water) was to be filled in for a proposed new highway. If somebody doesn't propose another highway again this year the Commission will probably put this body of water back on the stocking list.

is ex-officio president of the American National Red Cross. The governing body is known as the central committee. It is comprised of 18 persons, six elected by chapter delegates, six by the board of incorporators, and six appointed by the President. The last third includes chairmen and representatives of the State, War, Navy, Treasury, and Justice Departments.

President Roosevelt this year proclaimed March as the Red Cross month for the war fund campaign. The Red Cross receives no funds from the government although on request it has distributed goods purchased with federal appropriations. The war department audits all Red Cross accounts and submits annual reports to congress. Copies of these reports are available to the public upon request.

Since the membership drive or roll call and war fund campaign is combined this year by presidential decree, the division of the monies derived will be one-half for the armed forces, ten per cent for civilian emergency, one-quarter for preparedness. The balance will be used in chapter programs that cover local services to all three above mentioned.

Harold H. Haefner, war fund chairman for Lower Bensalem Branch of the Red Cross, states: "As this war is a people's war, surely Red Cross, which is comprised purely of the people, may budget upon increased popular support of not just a little but much, so that the far-reaching and expanding services to sons, husbands, brothers and sweethearts may be unsparingly carried out this coming year while they are fighting for us and our way of life on the battlefields 24 hours a day seven days a week with no time and a half for over time, God bless them."

Mr. Haefner then announced that his war fund program was complete and ready to be launched with William B. Chamberlin as chairman of industries; A. Kurtz King, organizations; Mrs. Robert Barnhill, small businesses; Mrs. Edward T. Taws, special gifts. The township has been divided into six sections for house-to-house canvassing, each with a captain in charge: Mrs. James McCartney, Andalusia and Torresdale Manor; Mrs. Helen O. Bowman, Cornwells Heights; Mrs. Edwin Klinker, Cornwells Manor; Mrs. L. Creighton Vandegriff, Eddington; Mrs. Englebert Smith, Bridgewater; Mrs. Walter H. Gillette, Newport Terrace.

These captains are to organize their own group of volunteer canvassers for their respective territory, whose names will be made public at a later date to inform residents whom their solicitor for the American Red Cross War Fund will be.

It is not true the war fund banquet held at the conclusion of the drive is paid for from funds collected. Each person attending the banquet pays the price of admission which adequately covers the cost. Benjamin Rush, Jr., campaign chairman for chapter, said: "There must be some confusion between banquets and benefits to wit: all revenues from benefits conducted to raise funds for Red Cross must go to the organization with no expenses deducted." The banquet given at the end of the war fund drive is not given for fund raising purposes but as a pleasant way to summarize the war fund campaign with those who have been interested and active members during its course.
